The Newspaper Guild-CWA announces the

David S. Barr Award

for student journalists in high school and college

The David S. Barr Award is intended to recognize one high school and one college student for their journalistic achievement and to encourage young journalists to focus on issues of social justice. It is named after David S. Barr, who for a quarter of a century served as The Newspaper Guild's general counsel, mentor, role model and institutional memory.

More specifically, the goals of the award are:

- To provide inspiration for a younger generation of journalists by recognizing work which contributes to the pursuit of justice and fairness;
- To promote issues of importance to working people;
- To serve as a lasting memorial to David S. Barr, in tribute to his work and teachings.

All entries must be of work published or broadcast between January 1, 2014 and December 31, 2014 that helped to right a wrong; corrected an injustice; or promoted justice and fairness. The awards will be presented in Washington D.C. (date and location to be announced at a later date). Barr winners will be provided with transportation and hotel lodging to attend the event.
